Dear parents/carers,

I am writing with this weeks transition tip, which is about reflecting on your child's time at primary school and all the positive experiences they have had, recalling events and happy times.

This will allow your child to see this period of their life is coming to an end , and soon they will progress on to their next chapter and will have positive experiences at secondary school too.

Family Transition Tip 9

This week in your school your child/ren will be encouraged to reflect back on their time at Primary school and think about all their achievements. You might want to start compiling a scrapbook/folder on your device of all the photographs that you may have taken throughout your child's journey. For example, their first day at school, any sports days, World Book day/other dress up events, sports days or any other occasions whereby your child may like to reminisce with you during their last few weeks at school. Do you have any certificates/awards that you might like to have in one place?

We hope you enjoy reflecting on your child's and maybe even your own primary school experiences.

The next tip will be sent after half term.

Kind regards,

Emma Hickling
